

Pavel Chesnokov

The Choir and How to Direct It

A Handbook for Choral Conductors

Translated from the Russian by
John C. Rommereim

Foreword by Kenneth L. Jennings

MUSICA RUSSICA

San Diego, California

Contents

Foreword , by Kenneth L. Jennings	xi
Pavel Chesnokov and His “Life’s Work,” by John C. Rommereim	xiii
Introduction to the 1961 Edition , by Klavdy Ptitsa	xlvii
Author’s Preface	lxiii
Acknowledgments	lxvii

Part I: The Choir

1	What Is a Choir?	3
2	The Structure of the Choir	10
3	Ensemble	20
4	Intonation	44
5	Nuance	78
6	The Nuances of Contrapuntal Compositions	103
7	A Complex System of Choral Organization	112

Part II: Choral Conducting

	Introduction	133
1	Conducting Entrances	136
2	Techniques for Achieving Ensemble	141
3	Techniques for Achieving Intonation	146
4	Techniques for Attaining Nuances	148
5	Methods of Teaching a Composition to a Choir	157

Appendices

I	“Těplitsa zórka” by Pavel Chesnokov.	179
II	Fugue from the Sacred Concerto by Maxim Berezovsky.	195
III	“Žimóy” by Pavel Chesnokov	207
IV	“Anchár” by Anton Arensky.	217
V	A Homework Plan for the Conductor	238
VI	Advice to Young Conductors	240
VII	Guidelines for Choral Auditions	243
	Bibliographic Notes.	245
	Index	251